TUESDAY.....AUGUST 2, 1859.
We delayed the issue of our paper until evening in order to get some definite returns from this district.

Franklin County.
The Democracy of Franklin have not disappointed their friends throughout the State in this election. Mr. Bell made no gains here, and Mr. Harlan, although it was his own county, we think, has been disappointed in the vote of Franklin. Mr. Page's majority is not quite fifty, and Col. Garrard lacks only five votes of carrying the county.

The election here, however, has not pleased us. We do not care half as much for the paltry majorities obtained by the Opposition ticket as for the mode by which they were obtained. On yesterday we are satisfied that not less than one hundred Democratic voters were debared from the exercise of their constitutional rights of suffrage. With a fair and full vote between the two tickets the Democracy would have carried the county by an average majority of about 75. Several very serious disturbances and assaults took place at and near the polls in Frankfort, and several men were badly hurt; but at the time of writing we are glad to learn that no one was killed or mortally wounded. These disturbances of the public peace are much to be deplored, and we trust that we are to have no more of them in this place.

In another column we give the full vote of all the precincts of this county. The following are the majorities:

Bell 30, Allen 31, Jas. Harlan 19, Page 49, White 4, Herndon 22, Evans 20, Haggard 22, John Harlan 47, Rodman 125, Coleman 47.

Latest Returns.
We learn from the passengers on the stage that Mercer county gives Magoffin 350 majority, and Brown, over Jewett, 850. Anderson gives Magoffin 450. Boyle county gives Bell 439, and Anderson, over Chrisman, 490. J. H. D. McKee elected to Legislature in Madison. Anderson county gives Jewett 122 majority.

The Ashland District.
At the time of going to press, about 4 P. M., it is reported that Simms has carried this district by 60 votes. We have never doubted his election, although since the returns commenced coming in we have thought his majority would be somewhat less than one hundred.

ELECTION NEWS.—From the returns so far, we believe the whole Democratic State ticket is elected by the Buchanan majority. We believe the Democracy have carried both branches of the Legislature by a good majority, and elected eight Congressmen. Glory enough for one day.

☞The great Joshua, who was going to break things loose in Kentucky and bring down the walls of Jericho with the blast of a ram's horn, has done it—in a horn. The Ashland District gives him no comfort—where can he look for support?

SALE OF MULES.—Mr. J. Henry Chiles, of Fayette county, a few days ago, sold ninety head of mules, two year olds, to Messrs. Wallace, Manning & Co., of Hawkinsville, Ga., for $165 per head. They were a fine lot of mules.

☞A Children's Home has been opened in New Orleans under Episcopal auspices.

☞The race in the Fifth District is close—Brown probably elected over Jewett.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—Col. Johnston, one of the editors of the late Washington Union, who, several months ago, was appointed Consul to Havre, has tendered his resignation. The office, however, is not open for competition.

So numerous have the applications for situation in the Census Bureau already become, that, in order to facilitate responses thereto, printed forms have been prepared, stating that no additional clerks will be required until next year.

Secretary Toucy has returned from his Northern trip.

A letter from Secretary Floyd, who is now at the Virginia Springs, states that his health is slowly improving.

How to Avoid Mosquitoes in Chambers.—A shrewd friend, says the Transcript, has adopted the following plan, which he assures us has been found entirely effectual. At dusk he opens every window, and carefully closes every door belonging to the chambers. The mosquitoes, attracted by the light outside, rush forth seeking whom they may devour. Then, before going to bed or bringing in a light, he closes the windows, and of course excludes all the outsiders. After the chamber lights are extinguished, the windows may again be opened without danger. This is so easy to do that we fear nobody will try it.

New Methodist College.—We learn from Rev. D. Welburn, the agent to raise funds for the endowment of a new Methodist College, to be located at Millersburg, Ky., that $45,000 have already been subscribed, and that the building, which is now in course of erection, will be ready for use the coming fall, when it will be opened as a High School.—Lex. Observer and Reporter.

☞Col. Helm, of Newport, Ky., American Consul at Havana, has succeeded in making important postal arrangements with the Cuban Government, facilitating American correspondence through that consulate on steamers and other vessels under the United States flag.

The Crops.—We are glad to learn that the crops, which were recently suffering so much from the effects of the drought, are coming out finely since the recent rains. The crops were much injured by the drought, but they are far from being ruined.—Nashville Patriot, 29th.

Murder.—GLASGOW, Ky., August 1.—Wm. Kimball, backer at John H. Gorin's, was killed to day by a man named Alex. Scott, in an affray. They were both Democrats. Scott has been arrested and the people threaten to lynch him.

☞The corn crop in this region, although looking finely, is suffering for want of rain. The dry, scorching weather will seriously affect it without much rain. The wheat harvest is anticipated, and barley not so good as was anticipated.—Paris Flag, 13th.

The Majorities in the City of Louisville.

Governor, Bell, 1,191; Lieut. Governor, Allen, 1,056; Auditor, Page, 1,007; Register, Herndon, 1,005; Superintendent Public Instruction, Evans, 1,012; President Board of Internal Improvements, Haggard, 1,016; Attorney General, Harlan, 1,041; Treasurer, Miller, 1,079; Congress, Mallory, 93.

The Total Vote of the City.

The aggregate vote of the city of Louisville yesterday was 5,474. This is less than it was seven years ago. It is not probable, then, that the whole vote of the city was polled. Indeed, no one can doubt that there must be many votes in the city who did not go to the polls yesterday. It is likely, however, that the Opposition vote is their strength, and that the absent voters belong generally to the Democracy. Such being the fact, the question of the real politics of this city is not yet determined.—Lou. Courier.

Croton Elected.

Louisville will have one Democrat in the next Legislature. Such a thing has not been known since the inauguration of Know-Nothingism. Joseph Croton is elected—absolutely elected—to the next Legislature as a Democrat from Louisville. This is almost glory enough for one day, and Joseph Croton will make a good legislator much better than the Know-Nothings we have been sending to Frankfort for years. We have faith in his making a first-rate legislator, and he will be greatly disappointed if he did not prove himself to be a faithful, capable, and efficient representative.—Lou. Courier.

Kent County.

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITIES IN CITY—Magoffin, 140; Boyd, 158; James, Attorney General, 161; Green, 101; Richardson, Superintendent Public Instruction, 336; Frazier, Register Land Office, 168; Bates, President Board Internal Improvements, 174; Garrard, Treasurer, 155; Stevens, 237; Representative—Carlisle's majority over Grant, 161; Ellis over Grant, 43.

Spencer County.
Magoffin will carry the county by 60 or 70 votes. Brown's majority will be about 80 votes. E. D. Massie, Dem., has been elected to the Legislature by a majority of 50 to 75 over M. J. Dem.

Bullitt County.
Brown's majority over Jewett will range from 115 to 130 votes. Harrison (Dem.) beats Hill, for Legislature, 125.

Oldham County.
R. T. Jacob is elected to the Legislature in Oldham and Sam E. DeHaven to the Senate, in Henry, Oldham, and Trimble. Holt's majority in the county will probably reach 175.

Nelson County.
BARDSTOWN, Aug. 1
Brown's majority in Nelson county, as far as heard from, 432; Magoffin's over 200.

The Result.

The returns received last night are too meagre to warrant us in predicting the probable Democratic majority in the State. We think that Magoffin is certainly elected by a majority ranging from 5,000 to 10,000.—Courier.

Farmers' Bank of Kentucky.

John H. Hanna, Esq., on Saturday last, resigned the office of President of the Farmers' Bank of Kentucky, and Philip Swigert, Esq., was unanimously chosen to fill his place.

Mr. Hanna has been President of the Farmers' Bank of Kentucky since its organization in 1851, and Mr. Swigert has been a Director during the same time. That the Bank has been admirably managed under the administration of its late President, the Board of Directors, and the other excellent officers who have been selected to superintend its financial affairs, is abundantly demonstrated by the published statement of its condition on the first of July, and by its having declared regular semi-annual dividends of five per cent. since its organization, and a surplus stock dividend of twenty per cent. on the first of July last.

We venture the assertion, without the fear of successful contradiction, that no Bank in Kentucky, or in the United States, has been managed with more ability and prudence, and with a more general desire on the part of its officers to accommodate the community, and to fulfill the great objects for which it was established.

Mr. Hanna's resignation of President has been caused by ill health and the onerous and increasing duties which devolved upon him. We are gratified to learn, however, that he will still remain in the Board of Directors.

Mr. P. Swigert, the gentleman who has been selected to supply the place of Mr. Hanna, is a well known, and a successful man in Kentucky, and in other States of the Union, that it is entirely unnecessary for us to say a single word in commendation of him. We doubt not that the Bank, under the administration of himself and other excellent officers, will continue to be as prosperous and useful as it has heretofore been.—Frank. Com.

A GREAT COUNTRY.—The Rev. Bishop

Pierce, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, gives the following picture of the State of Texas:

Texas is a curious country—a paradox.—Everything is in the superlative, or contradictory, or marvelous. It is the richest and the poorest; has the best land and the meanest water; is the hardest country to live in, and has the most to live on; the days are hottest and the nights are the coolest; here are the most rivers, and the least water; the most general education, and the least use made of it; there are more clouds, and less rain; more plains and less timber; more ropes to tie horses, and yet more strays; a poor country for farming, and yet the most productive; the least work, and the largest yield; the horses are small, and the cattle big; the frogs have horns, and the rabbits have ears like mules; the people are ignorant without general education, and inventive without being tricky—refined without mannerism—rich without money—hospitable without houses—bold, generous, and brave. In fine, here is an empire in extent and resources, but in the slow process of evolution, and yet destined to population, wealth, and power. There is much to admire, but little to deplore; many things to enchant, but few to offend; and for the people and their institutions there is a splendid future.

HORRIBLE MURDER IN MARSHALL COUNTY, VA.—ESCAPE OF THE MURDERER.—On Saturday last a young woman named Melissa Morris, who lived near Limestone, Marshall county, started to go from the house of a Mr. Knox, on Stell's Run, to that of a neighbor. Shortly afterwards she was followed by a young man named Nathaniel Harten, who returned to Mr. Knox's about half an hour, and passed on toward his neighbor's, where he remained over night, and left for parts unknown the next morning before daylight. Those who saw Harten follow the woman, and saw him return, supposed that the two were arranging an elopement.

Yesterday, however, neither of the parties making their appearance, the neighborhood became alarmed, and upon instituting a search, the lifeless body of the girl was found in a deep hollow, not far from Mr. Knox's house. The body was much bruised, and marks were visible where it had been dragged along the ground a considerable distance to a secluded spot. As Harten was seen following the girl, he is supposed to have first violated her person, and then added the crime of murder. He was nowhere to be found yesterday, and the wildest excitement existed in the vicinity of the horrible outrage. The body of the girl bore unmistakable signs that she had been most foully murdered. Harten is a medium sized man, with a dark complexion, and an impediment in his speech.—Wheeling Int., 28th.

Testimonial to the Memory of Dr. C. C. Phillips.

At a meeting of the physicians of the town of Frankfort, held July 30, 1859, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, 1. That we learned with the deepest regret of the death of our esteemed co-laborer in the profession, Dr. C. C. Phillips, which occurred on the morning of the 15th inst.

2. That we recognized the deceased as a skillful physician and amiable gentleman, and possessed of qualities calculated to endear him to many friends during his professional career.

3. To his surviving children we tender our special sympathies in their heavy bereavement, and our best wishes for their future welfare and usefulness.

Letter from the President.

PITTSBURG, July 30.—The following letter from President Buchanan, was received this morning by the Hon. Wilson McCandless:

"BEDFORD SPRINGS, July 25.
My Dear Sir: I have received your kind note of the 19th inst., with a leader from the Post. Whilst I appreciate as it deserves the ability and friendship displayed in the editorial, I yet regret that it has been published. My determination not, under any circumstances, to become a candidate for re-election is fixed and conclusive. My best judgment and strong inclination unite in favor of this course. To cast doubts upon my predetermined purpose is calculated to impair my influence in carrying out important measures, and affords a pretext for saying that these have been dictated by a desire to be re-nominated.

With the kindest regards, &c., I remain sincerely and respectfully your friend,
JAMES BUCHANAN."

THE RAIN AND THE CROPS.—On last Sunday and Sunday night we had a constant and general rain throughout Madison, and (so far as we heard) throughout the adjoining counties. The crop of a majority of counties composing our Congressional District, which had been a few weeks before so promising, had suffered severely from the drought previous to the rain; but our farmers are now buoyant with the prospect before them, and many of them will not consider it necessary to hoard up their old corn any longer.

Fighting the Tiger in Chicago—$28,000 Won at Faro.

A few nights since, while the honest and peaceful citizens of this great metropolis were dozing upon their pillows, and those only waked whom vice or crime kept from slumber, a curious scene was transpiring in the inner apartment of one of the most fashionable and well-known faro banks in this city. The parties present were not numerous. At one side of the table, and at the right of the dealer, sat a certain well-known Kentucky gentleman, now a resident of this city, and very popular as an auctioneer. Opposite to him were two clerks from dry goods stores on Lake street. At the foot of the table were three young gentlemen connected with certain of our city banks, and four professional fancy men. The game commenced at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It was now past 3 o'clock in the morning, and the contest was kept up with undiminished vigor. Fortune early in the evening had declared for the gentleman on the right of the dealer, and although luck occasionally deserted him, it again and again returned, until his winnings were enormous.

He had up to this time won $18,000. The perspiration stood in beaded drops upon the brows of the young men, and as they nervously laid down their counters on the squares, their hands shook with emotion they could not conceal. Even the practiced coolness of the professional gamblers deserted them, and they gnawed their lips in undisguised anxiety. The Kentucky gentleman suddenly laid down checks to the amount of 6,000, and as the dealer began to draw out the cards from the silver box in which they lie, left the table, and walked to the sideboard. The cards were dealt, and the $6,000 are lost! This reduces the winnings of the Colonel to $12,000. A temporary cessation of the game takes place. A hasty supper is taken; the Colonel proposes to play no more. The others object; they are firm in the belief that luck has changed, and that they will win their losses, which have been fearfully heavy, back again. The Colonel consents, and the game is resumed. It is now one o'clock. Day has begun to break, but the thick curtains of the apartment keep out the strengthening light.

The young men consult among themselves. The Colonel was won $2,000 again. He is now winner to the tune of $14,000. They have $10,000 between them. They put their funds together, place it in the hands of one of their number, and direct him to play until he loses it all, or until he wins back what they have already lost.

The Colonel wins $1,000—then loses $3,000. Hope springs again in the breasts of the young men. The representative makes a bet of $5,000. The company gather around with desperate interest. The cards fall from the box—they lose! Their funds are reduced to $6,000—for they have lost some to the bank, besides that paid the Colonel. And now their bets more cautiously first $1,000—then $500. He loses steadily. His last dollar is in his pocket. The others leave the table, having lost nearly that sum—the bank itself coming out nearly even.

The next day the fortunate Colonel settled $28,000 upon his wife, and swore off from the gambling hells. Whether he will keep his word remains to be seen.

What the young gentlemen did, who in one night lost $28,000, the easy impression being that such was this, by such men as these, without serious consequences? The scene we have related actually did occur. There are plenty of men who will read these lines, who know how true it is. Is a community in a healthy condition when such things occur?

There are nearly a dozen gambling rooms in this city, kept in first-rate style, and doing a business like this every night. Their location is well known—they are to be easily found. The police have orders not to disturb them, and they flourish like a green bay tree.

SERIOUS MISTAKE AT A CHURCH SACRAMENT AND THE CONSEQUENCES.—From the

Winchester (Ill.) Chronicle, July 16th, we take the following:

Last Sabbath was quarterly meeting of the M. E. Church and, as usual on such occasions, the sacrament was administered. After the meeting adjourned, the members went their several ways, some to dine with friends in town, some to their homes in the country. In about an hour the doctors were in requisition to examine a sick man, whose wife was in great distress. A whole membership was seized with a simultaneous bilious attack, and the demand for medical aid was general. The first meal of the sumptuous dinners prepared, provoked sudden and involuntary eruptions on the part of all the orthodox members of the respective families. The venerable Peter Cartwright, Presiding Elder, for whom extra preparations had of course been made, returned from the prospect as dinner came, a little bent over, with both hands placed below his vest buttons, declaring that "he didn't feel like eating." One brother is said to have made for his house, half bent, and with a groan tumbled on to the bed, and in reply to his wife's "What's the matter?" exclaimed in a despairing tone, "O, I've got the cholera." The epidemic spread all through the country, and in a few days, a large number, occasioning a general casting up of accounts. But the panic subsided when it was ascertained that antimonic wine had been, by mistake, administered to the whole body of communicants! We understand that Uncle Peter said "it was the first time he ever knew an attempt to vomit the devil out of the church." Although it was a serious matter, the sinners, owing to the hardness of their hearts, did laugh.

From Kansas.

St. Louis, July 29.—The Leavenworth Times has interesting private advice by the arrival of the express last night from Denver City, the 24th. The mines continued to yield well, and new leads were constantly developing. A good many miners were compelled to quit work on account of the scarcity of water. A company commenced the construction of a flume 11 miles long to convey water to the neighborhood of Otis Main City. Tunneling had also been commenced.

The Kansas Constitutional Convention had nearly completed its labors, and will probably adjourn to-morrow. The constitution is radically anti-slavery, but differs from the Leavenworth instrument, inasmuch as it does not extend the right of suffrage to negroes. The State Legislature is to consist of 72 Representatives and 21 Senators.

The business of the convention was disposed of with tolerable expedition, the questions of apportionment and temporary capital being the only measures that offered serious obstacles. Topeka was elected as the temporary capital, Lawrence being its competitor. The efforts of the participants were rewarded by considerable appropriation inside and outside the convention. One or more members are implicated in bribery. The indications are that the ratification of the constitution will be vigorously opposed by the Democracy, as its strong measures, the annexation of the Platte District, the exclusion of free negroes, the prohibition of bank issue, and the preservation of the present western boundary, which includes the gold regions, have been defeated.

In A PRETTY FIX.—A lady and gentleman in this vicinity, changing to be bathing au naturel, were, as usual, being separated by a ledge of rocks, a mischievous boy exchanged one pile of clothing for the other. Their perplexity and embarrassment upon emerging from the water may be better imagined than described; but seeing no other alternative, the lady donned the male and the gentleman the female apparel, hoops and "everything," and made their way to their homes in that guise.—New Haven News.

☞We understand that James Richardson has sold his farm lying on the waters of Otter Creek, about one mile from Richmond, to G. W. Manin, at the price of $121 50 per acre.—Richmond Messenger, 29th.

Parisian Fashions.—What the Empress is about to do.

As hoops once got out of fashion, so they will again fall into disuse. The latest fashions' bulletin from Paris, which exhibits an excellent model for July, announces two facts, highly interesting to the female portion of society. The double skirt is to be discontinued, in consequence of the change of mode just beginning, which only permits a great width to the lower part of the dress, thereby diminishing the proportion of the upper. "Perhaps," the reporter adds, "this modification may already be looked upon as a sort of invasion on the rights of the long triumphant crinoline." The fact is, the Empress Eugenie, who rules the fashions in Paris, has set her face very decidedly against the excess of crinoline, and, if rumor be credited, intends having them wholly abolished by the time the next season commences. It is her manifestation against the double skirt which has already substituted flounces, of which three or four are to be worn, but none above the knee.

Indeed, Eugenie seems inclined to bring back the female fashions of the early part of the first Empire, when Josephine was the autocrat of dress, and restore the figure to its natural shape. The impression in Paris, where all things run into extremes

The Macdonald tragedy.
Investigation by Coroner Jackson. Testimony of the Witnesses who saw the Occurrence—Macdonald in Court—His Appearance on the Examination—Condition of the wounded woman, etc.

An inquisition was held at the New York hospital yesterday by Coroner Jackson, for the purpose of ascertaining how and in what manner Miss Virginia Stewart came by her injuries. The prisoner, Robert C. Macdonald, was present during the examination of the witnesses, and appeared quite unconcerned as to the result of the investigation. He was attended by a counsel, and when brought up before the Coroner for examination he stated that he had nothing whatever to say in reference to the charge preferred against him. The testimony of the different witnesses established a clear case against the prisoner, and the jury rendered a verdict accordingly. The condition of Miss Stewart was not so good as previously reported. She continued in the same drowsy and insensible state throughout the entire day. An appeal will be made a report of the proceedings before the Coroner.

John Macauliffe, being duly sworn, deposes and says: I reside at 273 Canal street, on Saturday afternoon, about five o'clock, I was standing near the Branch House on Canal street, when I saw three ladies turning around the corner, accompanied by a gentleman; suddenly one of the women started down Canal street and commenced screaming; she ran towards the main entrance of the hotel, followed by the prisoner; I am positive Macdonald is the person; he had a pistol in his hand, and as she was about to enter the hotel he fired the pistol and she fell; I did not hear her say anything before she fell; I recognize the prisoner as the person who shot her; I then saw Mr. Vanrant seize hold of the prisoner and throw him down; this was about four feet from the woman fell; I went to Mr. Vanrant's assistance, and saw the prisoner arrested; I drive a carriage, and have my stand opposite the Branch House.

Mary Brooks, being duly sworn, deposes as follows: On Saturday afternoon, about four o'clock, the woman who was shot, Mrs. Alice Morgan and myself, went to Taylor's saloon to take dinner; we went into the upper saloon, and while there eating our dinner the prisoner—Robert C. Macdonald—came in; I was the first one of the three who saw him; I said, "There is Bob"; Miss Stewart turned, looked up, and he came and shook hands with her; he sat down beside us at another table, called the waiter, and called for a small bottle of champagne; he addressed Miss Stewart, and asked her when she got back from Boston; he then looked at me and said, "You told a very plausible story"; he then commenced conversing with Miss Stewart, but I could not hear what was said; because they were some distance from where I sat; when the waiter brought the wine the prisoner poured out one glass and called for some ice; I was in a hurry to leave, and as soon as we got through our dinner we rose to go away; Miss Stewart went to the desk to pay the bill, and we started for the door, leaving the prisoner and Miss Stewart standing talking to each other; I heard her say, "I want you to let me alone, or I will call on officer," he said, "You can't call on officer before I can pull out a pistol and shoot you"; after that they came out of the door and walked towards Canal street; they passed behind us for a short distance, and then passed us; in passing, Miss Stewart hurriedly told me to call an officer; I did not call an officer; I would have called one; Miss Morgan and myself both looked for one; when they got to the corner of Broadway and Canal street Miss Stewart turned; Macdonald opened his vest, and when I saw this movement I said, "Oh, Bob, don't do so"; I was apprehensive of danger, knowing that the prisoner was in the habit of carrying arms; I saw him draw the pistol, and he commenced firing; I will tell her, he will kill her; he fired the report of the pistol, and her scream; I did not see her run, for I turned when I saw the pistol; after the report of the pistol I turned and saw that Miss Stewart had fallen at the door-step of the Branch House and was bleeding from the left temple; her face, hands and clothes were covered with blood; she was taken in charge by an officer and some citizens; a drug store, the officer asked me if I knew who shot the woman; I said I did, when he said, "Come with me and show me"; when we got up we found that he had been arrested, but could not see him as the crowd was very great; I then went to Miss Stewart and begged a gentleman who was present to send for a physician; he said they had done so; Miss Stewart was then brought to the hospital, where she now lies; I have been acquainted with the prisoner for some seven or eight years.

Alice Morgan, sworn, says: I can corroborate the testimony of the previous witness in all its details; I saw the prisoner draw the pistol from his breast; saw Miss Stewart run down Canal street followed by the prisoner, and immediately afterwards the prisoner raised the weapon and fired; Miss Stewart fell at the entrance of the hotel; when I saw the prisoner drawing the pistol I caught his arm and said, "Oh, Bob, don't do that." He jerked away from me and turned toward Miss Stewart, who screamed and ran for the Branch House; when I saw him leveling the pistol I exclaimed, "Oh, Jenny, run into some place." She then turned as if to go into the Branch House, when he fired. I kept my eye upon the prisoner from the moment he drew the pistol until he shot Miss Stewart; I was the first one at Miss Stewart's side when she fell; she did not speak.

William Roberts, of the eighth precinct, being sworn, says: About five o'clock Saturday afternoon I was on duty in the eighth precinct, on Broadway, when I heard a woman scream, and immediately afterwards heard the discharge of a pistol; I ran over to the Branch House, where I found a man struggling with some citizens, with a pistol in his hand; I saw that the weapon was cocked, and told those who had hold of the man to let me get it away from him; I took it away from him; it was a revolver; I put the hammer down and put it in my pocket; some two or three persons had hold of the pistol when I took it away from the prisoner; I asked Mr. Leacraft to assist me in taking the prisoner to the station house, and cautioned him not to let the prisoner's hand loose; when we got to the station house I gave the pistol to the officer in command and then searched the prisoner in his possession, and found a bowie knife and other articles; I was on the upper side of Canal street when the shot was fired.

At this stage of the proceedings, Coroner Jackson announced that the testimony was closed, and that he would submit the case to the jury on the strength of the evidence already adduced. The jury then retired for deliberation, and in a few moments afterwards brought in the following verdict:

"That the said Virginia Stewart came to her wounding by a pistol shot fired by the prisoner, Robert C. Macdonald, July 23, 1859."

The pris was then examined in the usual manner prescribed by law, when he made answer to the questions put to him as follows:

Q. What is your name? A. Robert C. Macdonald.

Q. How old are you? A. Thirty years.

Q. Where were you born? A. Jefferson county, Kentucky.

Q. Where did you live? A. Mobile, Alabama.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Cotton merchant.

Q. Have you anything to say, and if so, what, relative to the charge here preferred against you? A. Not anything.

The prisoner was then conducted back to his cell in the Tombs, while such of the witnesses as could not give bail were also placed in charge of the police.

Dr. Quimby reports the condition of Virginia Stewart to be in the same low state as yesterday. The two girls, Mary Brooks and Alice Morgan, who were in her company when she was shot, have been arrested and lodged in the House of Retention, in White street, to serve as witnesses.

Our friend Frank M. Smith sold a tract of land lying near Kirksville, ten miles from Richmond, a few days ago, to Willis Sumate, Esq., one hundred dollars per acre. We believe nearly all of our Silver Creek farmers consider that their lands ought to command that price.

Reminiscences of Mr. Choate, by his Clergyman.

MR. CHOATE'S DE-LIKE OF NARCOTICS—HIS RELIGIOUS OPINIONS AND LAST HOURS.

Rev. Nehemiah Adams, Pastor of the Calvinistic church in which Rufus Choate was a member, gave in his funeral discourse on the 23rd of July the following reminiscences of the eminent lawyer:

It may seem remarkable to some that a man of his nervous temperament, and subject to such great and frequent demands upon it, should not have fallen into the habitual use of some powerful narcotic. Had he done so, it would have plainly manifested itself in the so constantly before the public as he. Exaltation of spirits by a powerful narcotic is inevitably followed by a corresponding depression, unfitting its miserable subject for continuous mental labor. But we all know how consecutive he was in his mental efforts. When he had performed one great service he was ready for another of a different, but equally laborious kind, or for his daily work.

He knew that he must do to me by personal observation. I will only say that if he seemed he needed repentance and the blood that cleanseth from sin; and that without holiness no man shall see the Lord. If he was mortal he was a sinner; and if he was not mortal why is he there? Whether he did or did not experience that new birth without which no man can see the Kingdom of God, God knows. There are things which no man can know but he must do to be saved.

He was speaking with a Christian friend, in his recent sickness, about his feelings under the preaching of the gospel. He said: "Any man who goes to perdition under that preaching, goes on his own responsibility."

He spoke at that time of Mr. Webster's last hours, and discussed the question of that great one of the three who saw him; I said, "There is Bob"; Miss Stewart turned, looked up, and he came and shook hands with her; he sat down beside us at another table, called the waiter, and called for a small bottle of champagne; he addressed Miss Stewart, and asked her when she got back from Boston; he then looked at me and said, "You told a very plausible story"; he then commenced conversing with Miss Stewart, but I could not hear what was said; because they were some distance from where I sat; when the waiter brought the wine the prisoner poured out one glass and called for some ice; I was in a hurry to leave, and as soon as we got through our dinner we rose to go away; Miss Stewart went to the desk to pay the bill, and we started for the door, leaving the prisoner and Miss Stewart standing talking to each other; I heard her say, "I want you to let me alone, or I will call on officer," he said, "You can't call on officer before I can pull out a pistol and shoot you"; after that they came out of the door and walked towards Canal street; they passed behind us for a short distance, and then passed us; in passing, Miss Stewart hurriedly told me to call an officer; I did not call an officer; I would have called one; Miss Morgan and myself both looked for one; when they got to the corner of Broadway and Canal street Miss Stewart turned; Macdonald opened his vest, and when I saw this movement I said, "Oh, Bob, don't do so"; I was apprehensive of danger, knowing that the prisoner was in the habit of carrying arms; I saw him draw the pistol, and he commenced firing; I will tell her, he will kill her; he fired the report of the pistol, and her scream; I did not see her run, for I turned when I saw the pistol; after the report of the pistol I turned and saw that Miss Stewart had fallen at the door-step of the Branch House and was bleeding from the left temple; her face, hands and clothes were covered with blood; she was taken in charge by an officer and some citizens; a drug store, the officer asked me if I knew who shot the woman; I said I did, when he said, "Come with me and show me"; when we got up we found that he had been arrested, but could not see him as the crowd was very great; I then went to Miss Stewart and begged a gentleman who was present to send for a physician; he said they had done so; Miss Stewart was then brought to the hospital, where she now lies; I have been acquainted with the prisoner for some seven or eight years.

Alice Morgan, sworn, says: I can corroborate the testimony of the previous witness in all its details; I saw the prisoner draw the pistol from his breast; saw Miss Stewart run down Canal street followed by the prisoner, and immediately afterwards the prisoner raised the weapon and fired; Miss Stewart fell at the entrance of the hotel; when I saw the prisoner drawing the pistol I caught his arm and said, "Oh, Bob, don't do that." He jerked away from me and turned toward Miss Stewart, who screamed and ran for the Branch House; when I saw him leveling the pistol I exclaimed, "Oh, Jenny, run into some place." She then turned as if to go into the Branch House, when he fired. I kept my eye upon the prisoner from the moment he drew the pistol until he shot Miss Stewart; I was the first one at Miss Stewart's side when she fell; she did not speak.

William Roberts, of the eighth precinct, being sworn, says: About five o'clock Saturday afternoon I was on duty in the eighth precinct, on Broadway, when I heard a woman scream, and immediately afterwards heard the discharge of a pistol; I ran over to the Branch House, where I found a man struggling with some citizens, with a pistol in his hand; I saw that the weapon was cocked, and told those who had hold of the man to let me get it away from him; I took it away from him; it was a revolver; I put the hammer down and put it in my pocket; some two or three persons had hold of the pistol when I took it away from the prisoner; I asked Mr. Leacraft to assist me in taking the prisoner to the station house, and cautioned him not to let the prisoner's hand loose; when we got to the station house I gave the pistol to the officer in command and then searched the prisoner in his possession, and found a bowie knife and other articles; I was on the upper side of Canal street when the shot was fired.

At this stage of the proceedings, Coroner Jackson announced that the testimony was closed, and that he would submit the case to the jury on the strength of the evidence already adduced. The jury then retired for deliberation, and in a few moments afterwards brought in the following verdict:

"That the said Virginia Stewart came to her wounding by a pistol shot fired by the prisoner, Robert C. Macdonald, July 23, 1859."

The pris was then examined in the usual manner prescribed by law, when he made answer to the questions put to him as follows:

Q. What is your name? A. Robert C. Macdonald.

Q. How old are you? A. Thirty years.

Q. Where were you born? A. Jefferson county, Kentucky.

Q. Where did you live? A. Mobile, Alabama.

Q. What is your occupation? A. Cotton merchant.

Q. Have you anything to say, and if so, what, relative to the charge here preferred against you? A. Not anything.

The prisoner was then conducted back to his cell in the Tombs, while such of the witnesses as could not give bail were also placed in charge of the police.

Dr. Quimby reports the condition of Virginia Stewart to be in the same low state as yesterday. The two girls, Mary Brooks and Alice Morgan, who were in her company when she was shot, have been arrested and lodged in the House of Retention, in White street, to serve as witnesses.

Our friend Frank M. Smith sold a tract of land lying near Kirksville, ten miles from Richmond, a few days ago, to Willis Sumate, Esq., one hundred dollars per acre. We believe nearly all of our Silver Creek farmers consider that their lands ought to command that price.

MR. CHOATE'S DE-LIKE OF NARCOTICS—HIS RELIGIOUS OPINIONS AND LAST HOURS.

Rev. Nehemiah Adams, Pastor of the Calvinistic church in which Rufus Choate was a member, gave in his funeral discourse on the 23rd of July the following reminiscences of the eminent lawyer:

It may seem remarkable to some that a man of his nervous temperament, and subject to such great and frequent demands upon it, should not have fallen into the habitual use of some powerful narcotic. Had he done so, it would have plainly manifested itself in the so constantly before the public as he. Exaltation of spirits by a powerful narcotic is inevitably followed by a corresponding depression, unfitting its miserable subject for continuous mental labor. But we all know how consecutive he was in his mental efforts. When he had performed one great service he was ready for another of a different, but equally laborious kind, or for his daily work.

He knew that he must do to me by personal observation. I will only say that if he seemed he needed repentance and the blood that cleanseth from sin; and that without holiness no man shall see the Lord. If he was mortal he was a sinner; and if he was not mortal why is he there? Whether he did or did not experience that new birth without which no man can see the Kingdom of God, God knows. There are things which no man can know but he must do to be saved.
